South African High Court Dismisses APM Terminals' Bid Challenge

Background/Description of the Disclosure

International Container Terminal Services, Inc. ("ICTSI") reports that the High Court of South Africa, KwaZulu-Natal Local Division, Durban, has dismissed an application filed by APM Terminals BV ("APM") challenging the award of a 25-year port terminal development contract at Durban Container Terminal 2 (DCT2) to ICTSI.

The court ruled that Transnet SOC Limited ("Transnet") acted within its discretion and complied with the principles of fairness and transparency in awarding the contract. It further held that the solvency ratio was not the sole measure of financial qualification and that ICTSI's financial strength was appropriately validated.

In addition, the court found that APM's legal challenge was brought with undue delay, further justifying its dismissal.

ICTSI welcomes the court's ruling and reaffirms its commitment to delivering long-term value and operational excellence at the Durban Container Terminal 2 (DCT2) in close partnership with Transnet. The Company will provide further updates to the Exchange regarding next steps as soon as it receives formal guidance from Transnet on the way forward.
